

What is NAPCRG?

The North American Primary Care Research Group (NAPCRG) is a multidisciplinary organization for primary care researchers. Founded in 1972 and oriented to family medicine, NAPCRG welcomes members from all primary care generalist disciplines and related fields, including epidemiology, behavioral sciences, and health services research.

NAPCRG's accomplishments in fostering primary care research include:

- Promoting multi-method research and linkages between qualitative and quantitative approaches to primary care research
- Nurturing novice researchers with training in research methodology, grant development, and career planning; supportive feedback on research ideas and projects; and experience presenting their work in an international forum
- Developing and supporting practice-based research networks of regional, national, and international scope
- Developing primary care classification systems for research and patient care
- Stimulating senior scientists with an interdisciplinary network of colleagues, cutting-edge research technologies, and an organization devoted to research in primary care
- Developed the document, "Responsible Research With Communities: Participatory Research in Primary Care"

NAPCRG advocates for primary care research through its support of the College of Family Physicians of Canada Section of Researchers and its participation in the Council of Academic Family Medicine (CAFM) and Working Party, along with other Working Party members -- the American Academy of Family Physicians, the American Board of Family Medicine, the Association of Departments of Family Medicine, the Association of Family Practice Residency Directors, and the Society of Teachers of Family Medicine

NAPCRG has over 800 members, primarily in the United States and Canada. Members can participate in any of 35 special interest groups.

NAPCRG's next Annual Meeting will be in Seattle, November 13 – 17, 2010. The 2009 Annual Meeting was in Montreal and was attended by 687 researchers.

Submissions for presentations at the Annual Meeting are being accepted on www.NAPCRG.org until April 19, 2010.
